

Public Policies & the Direction of Financial Flows

The Editors

Hubert Bonin was born in 1950 and is Professor in Modern Economic History at Sciences Po Bordeaux and a member of the Gretha research centre at Bordeaux 4-Montesquieu University. He is a specialist in the history of services companies (colonial and overseas trading houses and their maritime affiliates) and moreover of French banking history (regional banks, or Paris deposit, corporate and investment banks, with several monographs and a few handbooks). He has been also working on the large history of French Société Générale from 1864 to the 1940s in several volumes (the first published in 2006) and a history of investment banks and of French banks in Asia. As a specialist in business history, he has co-guided the research programs Ford in Europe (1903-2003) and is taking part to several programs in banking and business history. Among others he is also a member of the Academic Council of the European Association for Banking & Financial History (EABH) e.V.

Niels-Viggo Haueter graduated in German and English linguistics from the University of Zurich. He is Head of Swiss Reinsurance Company's Corporate History team and the company's historical archives. Current research topics include the financial history of reinsurance and other reinsurance related topics. After serving on EABH's Academic Council, He has become its Vice Chairman in 2012. He has edited a series of arts books as well as in-house published reports for and a concise history of Swiss Re. Most recently, he co-edited World Insurance - The Evolution of a Global Risk Network which was published in 2012.

Alfredo Gigliobianco was born in Cremona, Italy, in 1955. He earned his degree in Economics at the University of Modena in 1978 and studied Economics and Political Science at MIT in 1980. After being economist at the United Nations Secretariat between 1983 and 1985, he joined the Bank of Italy as economic historian. Since 2007 he has been Head of the Economic and Financial History Division of the Bank. He taught (2005, 2008 and 2009) at the Venice International Summer School on Finance, Institutions and History. His main areas of interest are the evolution of financial systems, State intervention in the economy, the structure and evolution of economic elites. He has published widely in these fields and is also member of the Advisory Council of the European Association for Banking and Financial History (EABH) e.V.

Harold James is Professor of History at Princeton University and fellow at Historisches Kolleg, Munich. He holds a joint appointment as Professor of International Affairs in the Woodrow Wilson School, and focuses on economic and financial history and modern German history. He was educated at Cambridge University, received his PhD in 1982, and started teaching at Princeton University in 1986. He has been a long-lasting member of EABH's Academic Council and became its Chairman in 2012. His books include a study of the interwar depression in Germany, The German Slump, published 1986, A German Identity 1770-1990 in 1989 and International Monetary Cooperation Since Bretton Woods in 1996. He was co-author of Die Deutsche Bank: 1870-1995, published 1995, which won the Financial Times Global Business Book Award. A more recent work is The Creation and Destruction of Value: The Globalization Cycle. In 2004 he was awarded with the Helmut Schmidt Prize for Economic History.